White House Prep School and Woodentops Day Nursery

NUT-FREE POLICY

The White House operates a Nut-Free Policy. It will never knowingly use products that contain nuts and this has been clearly communicated with the food provider.

Snacks brought into School from home

Children who are attending clubs after school are allowed to bring in a snack to eat at the end of the day. Please be aware that more and more products are now containing the warning:

‘This product may contain traces of nuts’

It has been agreed that children can continue to use these products with the condition that nuts are not contained in the ingredients lists. To eliminate any risk all snacks need to be in their original packaging and handed into the class teacher to be checked at the start of the day. Homemade snacks will not be accepted and we encourage fresh fruit and vegetables. Snacks are only permitted within the classroom and closely supervised by the class teacher.

For school trips, packed lunches and snacks are provided by our food provider and when the pack lunches are distributed it is done under close supervision by the class teacher.

All White House staff have received training from First Aid For Life. Children who require epipens are constantly reminded that they must be in possession of them at all times. All staff are aware of those children and support them. These epipens are kept safely in the classroom and those children then collect their epipen and take it to the playground. This is also the case when we go to sport lessons off-site.

In addition to this, The White House has invested in two spare epi-pens in the office in case of emergency. Staff receive an annual refresher on how to use epi-pens and a reminder of where they are kept.

Policy will be reviewed annually
